STATE SUPREME COURT RULES AGAINST DRAINING MINE WATER INTO INDIAN CREEK

Decision of Fayette Against Mountain Water Supply Company and Others Reversed— May Mean Suspension of Smaller Coal Companies Which Must Resort to Treatment of Drainage — Good News for Fishermen.

By United Press.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 29.—The Sagamore Coal Company and the Melcroft Coal Company and others of Fayette county were enjoined from emptying mine draining water into Indian creek by the State Supreme Court today.

The court dismissed the decree of the lower court which permitted them to empty mine water into the stream.

The Mountain Water Supply Company, the Dunbar Water Company and the Pennsylvania Railroad were the plaintiffs in the case.

The finding of Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen in the Fayette county court followed the taking of voluminous evidence, with each side to the controversy represented by a large corps of leading lawyers of the State. In substance it was held by the lower court that the water and railroad companies could at less expense take care of the mine water than could the coal companies.

The decision is one of the most far reaching ever handed down in a state court. Not only will the score of coal companies in the Indian Creek Valley be affected but every coal company in the State which drains mine water into streams.

The decision, if it stands, will be hailed with consternation on one hand and delight on the other. To the coal companies it will mean that if they expect to continue in business they must treat the mine water to neutralize the sulphuric acid before it is emptied into the streams. To the sportsmen it will mean the saving of streams that are threatened with extinction of fish life by mine water and the restoration of those in which fish long ago became extinct because of the mine drainage.

It was said today that it probably will mean that many smaller companies will have to quit business for the reason that while successful means of treating mine water have been developed they are too expensive for the company of small means.

By United Press.

SEATTLE, Sept. 29.—Complete rest, with no thought of weather conditions, faced the American Army around-the-world fliers as they awoke today after having officially completed the first aerial girdling of the globe.

The airmen reached Seattle Sunday afternoon, five months and 22 days after their start on the flight.

Leaving Seattle April 6 the fliers traversed 28,000 miles and touched 21 countries, 25 states and one territory of the Union. They were in the air 350 hours, making a total of 57 hops, averaging 483 miles each.

SEATTLE, Sept. 29. — America's army around-the-world fliers completed the circuit of the globe Sunday afternoon, landing at Sand Point Field at 1:36 o'clock, Pacific time.

Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith was the first to land. He was followed by Lieutenant Leigh Wade, then Lieutenant Erik Nelson.

The weather here was warm, approaching suitriness. Sirens shrieked as the planes flew over the city. Thousands of voices roared a welcome at the field. Among the first to greet the fliers was Major Frederick L. Martin, who originally was commander of the flight, but who was forced out when his plane hit a mountain in Alaska.

Lieutenant Leslie Arnold was hugged and kissed by his mother, Mrs. Cora Arnold and his sister, Mrs. Frances Cole of Spokane.

The fliers left Eugene, Ore., at 10:02 A. M. on their last leg. They landed at Vancouver Barracks a few minutes after leaving Portland to make adjustments to Wade's engine. The fliers left Vancouver at 11:57 A. M.

COOLIDGE INROADS ALARMING TAMMANY LEADERS IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—So great has been the response to the organization here of the Coolidge Non-Partisan League, with Colonel Rhinelander Waldo as president, that Tammany Hall has become aroused over the likelihood of Coolidge carrying this Democratic stronghold. Tammany has ordered rallies in all its 75 club houses, covering every district in the city, in an attempt to check the Democratic drift to Mr. Coolidge.

A partial cut into the normal Democratic majority in New York City is enough to insure a Coolidge victory in the state, but the present outlook is that Mr. Coolidge actually will carry all the five boroughs in the city. So serious has this Democratic situation become that Tammany leader George Olvany and Clem Shaver, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, have been in conference to devise possible ways and means to hold New York in the Democratic lines.

"Tammany Hall was confident it would continue to control the Democratic vote this year, and so pile up a big majority for Davis in New York City," said Colonel Waldo. "But Tammany has found it impossible to check even temporarily the growth of Coolidge sentiment in its ranks. The organization of the Coolidge Non-Partisan League brought this sentiment to the surface, and has lead to the sudden alarm and feverish activity of Tammany leader Olvany and Democratic National Chairman Shaver, and also, I am informed, of Mr. Davis, the Democratic nominee himself."

GREAT BATTLE IS IN PROGRESS BEFORE SHANGHAI

Struggle May Be Final Phase of Drive to Capture the City.

By United Press.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 29.—The fiercest battle of modern China's history raged along the entire Shanghai front this afternoon. Apparently it is the final phase of the local conflict.

Artillery, bombing planes and machine-gun fire kept up a terrific bombardment that shook Shanghai.

General Lu claimed advances at Kiating and Malu, while Chi's forces were hammering at Liuho, aiming to capture the Woosung fort.

JAPAN IS BELIEVED SEEKING WAY OUT OF NATIONS LEAGUE

Injection of Controversy Looked Upon as Move for Graceful Exit.

MENACES ARMS PARLEY

By United Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 29. — Delegates worked desperately today to save the League of Nations protocol on arbitration and security, imperiled by Japan's insistence upon bringing the question of such problems as the American-Japanese exclusion act before the league.

The protocol, hailed as the greatest constructive step toward world peace in the league history, provides for a disarmament conference if three of the four nations represented on the council endorse it. Ambassador Adatchi, Japan's representative, virtually has threatened opposition unless the protocol's seventh article is revised and so worded that disputes arising from questions of purely domestic jurisdiction may be brought before the council. The word immigration was not mentioned, but, stripped of its verbiage and technicalities, the Japanese proposal means that Japan wants to carry its complaint against the United States to the league.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Japan's attitude toward the League of Nations protocol has created an atmosphere at Geneva vibrant with apprehension, the morning Post correspondent says, adding that it is generally feared Japan really is seeking an opportunity to gracefully exit from the league.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—The cabinet today discussed the Japanese attitude on the League of Nations protocol regarding arbitration and security.

GENEVA, Sept. 29.—San Domingo was admitted to membership in the League of Nations today, making the 55th member.

LAFOLLETTE DOES NOT LIKE RATING AS SOCIALIST IN CALIF.

Where Progressives Shy at Voting for a Candidate Under That Banner.

SUPREME COURT DECISION

Give Independents a Taste of the Same Medicine They Administered To Taft 12 Years Ago: "Hi" Johnson Thinks It "Unjustified" Now.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1924 by The Daily Courier.

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Sept. 29.—The decision of the state supreme court here which denies Senator LaFollette a place in the Independent column and in effect compels his supporters to mark their ballots under the Socialist banner will hurt the cause of the Wisconsin leader and help the chances of President Coolidge.

Judging from the expressions of bitterness which are coming from the LaFollette managers here no other inference is possible except that their opportunities for vote getting have been impaired. The Socialists, conforming to the requirements of the statute, have kept their electoral list open out of friendship for the LaFollette forces and now will name LaFollette electors.

But the question may be well be asked: "Why did the LaFollette men want to remain aloof from the Socialists whose column they now embrace?" The answer undoubtedly is that the LaFollette strategists thought the word "Independent" a better advertisement than the word "Socialist."

Many of the California voters share the same feeling that the term "Socialist" carries with it a certain opprobrium. They may like LaFollette—and some of the near-Socialists would not care whether he was listed under the flaming torch—but nevertheless many other voters do not care to affiliate even for one election with the Socialist party.

The cry that the supreme court has denied the LaFollette electors a place on the ballot is not altogether accurate for it is still possible for any voter to write in the names of the LaFollette electors and slips could be furnished at the polls by the LaFollette managers to keep the voter from forgetting the 13 names.

But writing in the names or dragging a reluctant number of voters into the Socialist column is not as simple a matter as

DICKERSON RUN MAN ARRESTED IN MOONSHINE RAID

Constable Jerry Ritenour of Vanderbilt, Earl Jones of Dunbar township and Walter Brown of Connellsville made two raids on moonshiners Saturday. About 2:30 o'clock they made a call on "Shorty" Newcomer's store at the end of the street car line at Dickerson Run where they confiscated a half a gallon of moonshine. Newcomer was taken to the county jail in default of $1,000 bail.

A raid on a Trotter family netted three and one-half gallons of moonshine but the "man of the house" could not be found by the authorities. Only the women were at the house. The liquor was taken and the officials are looking for the tenant.

Supposed Customer Dashes Out of Hyatt Jewelry Store With Gems Worth $1,000

Three diamond rings, with a total value of approximately $1,000, were stolen from the jewelry store of C. M. Hyatt in North Pittsburg street Saturday night by a young man, who, representing himself as a prospective purchaser, secured three of them from the cases and then dashed through the door into the crowded street, where he was quickly lost to sight. Police were notified but no clues to his whereabouts have been uncovered.

The robber had paid two previous visits to the store. He told Mr. Hyatt who waited on him, that his name was Stone and he was acting as an agent for the employes of the Second National Bank, who intended to purchase a ring for J. A. Armstrong, the cashier.

The thief first visited the store early in the evening. He looked at the rings and said he would return later. He reappeared and looked over the rings he had been shown a short time before. Again he said he would return and about 8:15 o'clock he hurried into the store, hatless. He then told the story about the ring being purchased for Mr. Armstrong. He had a number of bills in his hand and said he did not desire to pay more than $450. Apparently unable to decide which of three rings he wanted he suggested that he be allowed to take them to the bank to permit the "boys" to select the one they wanted.

Mr. Hyatt said it would be preferable for the "boys" to appear at the store. The stranger had the rings in his hand. He dashed for the door and before other persons in the store knew what had happened he was gone.

Mr. Hyatt could not pursue him quickly as he was behind the counter and the time it required for him to get out of the aisle gave the robber the necessary start. Three other clerks in the store were waiting on customers at the time.

Mrs. Hyatt, waiting on a customer, was not behind the counter, and the thief had to pass her to get to the street. His action was so swift, however, that he was gone before she realized his inten-

Handbag Is Made From Small Pieces of Silk

Quite an odd and attractive handbag can be made from small pieces of different colored silk by cutting the silk in strips about three-quarters of an inch wide and turning them in so that there will be no fraying or raw edges and then twisting each strip very tightly.

After they are twisted they can be arranged so as to form a design and can be sewn in place.

The colors are the most important thing in the arrangement as they will help to bring out the idea of the design. The design can be drawn on a piece of canvas or sateen and may be filled in with twisted silk, the colors being arranged according to one's own taste.

If you are not good at designing you may be able to make a very artistic bag by sewing the silk on and giving it a twist here and there in a sort of scroll pattern, blending one color into another.

When this much of the bag is completed a top of some sort will have to be attached. Now the question is what kind of top would be most satisfactory—a frame or a drawstring? The bag with a definite design, the outside of which would be broken by folds made by a drawstring, would necessarily have a frame whereas a bag with a continual design like the scroll pattern could have either a drawstring or a frame.

The design on a bag of this description seen recently represented a landscape and was entirely made of rosettes of twisted silk sewn very tightly together. The sky was of blue, a small house in the distance of yellow with small white pieces of silk for windows. Brown rosettes were used to form a road leading to the house and on both sides of the road green rosettes represented grass.—Chicago Journal.

Autumn Styles in Gloves and Shoes

Footgear for New Season Is More Sedate—Gauntlets Are in Favor.

It was inevitable that styles in gloves and shoes would swing away from the extremely ornate models that developed after the first departure from the plain matter of fact articles originally considered correct, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times.

The autumn styles are vastly more sedate. It is evident that the smart oxfords, the slipper with one strap, the plain opera slipper to which a handsome buckle of rhinestones, cut steel or jet is usually added, will be the prevailing styles for dress and semi-dress occasions. For the street the silly satins and low-cut side shoes are gone forever, but the latest mode are a sort of compromise between the practical protecting boot and the sandal. They are trim and graceful and often seen in black or brown. The medium comfortably heeled colonials are of calf for walking with a buckle of nickel or gunmetal.

A particularly smart model is made of black kid combined with black suede which forms the upper part of the shoe, crossed with an inset strap of the suede that fastens with one button at the side. All of these latest models, of kid, suede or ooze which is again to be much worn, cover the foot and instep well and the Louis Quinze heel is seen on them for evening.

The latest styles in gloves show the same reversion of taste as those of shoes. After all there is the tenet that a woman of taste will have her feet and her hands inconspicuous. It must be said however that some of the styles recently shown were far from this tradition.

In any event a shoe or a glove must not take with its daintiness and suitability. The fancy models in gloves that flashed into view at the beginning of the season appear to have gone with the roses of June. The fringe trimmed, ruffled and beaded affairs gave an effect of tawdry cheapness that made their popularity brief and turned attention to the simple styles.

The last of these are chiefly gauntlet style for street dress, the cuff a circular flare or plaiting or fitted cuff with a pointed scalloped edge. In the very latest color combination—brown and black—ultra smart gauntlets of Havana brown suede are worn with an all-black silk pullon street dress, the chain cuff of the glove covering the wrist of the one tight sleeve.

As greater attention is being paid to the care and beauty of the skin long kid gloves, which have been almost wholly superseded by the new styles in fabric and silk, are coming back and many fashionable women prefer these and the suedes with the soft gauntlets. Chamois doeskin and buck in are still the swagger gloves for sports wear, driving and motoring, though the flapper contingent clings to the joy of bare hands during warm weather. The incoming styles for the street include the heavy lisle fitted gauntlet and the Bin tity of glace kid lapskin[?] or doeskin with self-toned stitching or the arrowhead pattern on the back.

"What old adage?"

"Still," declared the publisher, "it isn't good enough to call for an extra."

UNEMPLOYMENT MAY SPLIT LABOR REGIME IN GREAT BRITAIN

Failure to Provide Work for 1,122,200 Idle Men Not Due to MacDonald.

DAWES PLAN IS OPPOSED

LONDON, Sept. 29. (United Press).—Whatever the verdict of the country on the Macdonald Labor Government's Russian, Irish, German and other policies, unemployment looks like the rock on which Britain's first Labor administration may split.

Impartial observers concede that it is not fair to blame Macdonald and his colleagues for their failure to reduce materially Britain's million and a quarter odd unemployed list during the first six months of their tenure of office without a majority in Parliament, but the opposition political parties are pointing out that labor professed to have a complete remedy for unemployment—which so far has not materialized.

December 31, 1923—just before the Labor government took office—there were 1,286,623 people unemployed in Great Britain, as shown by the official lists issued by the Ministry of Labor. That is to say, this number of people were drawing the government's unemployment benefits. There were others unemployed, or part employed. With the advent of spring and summer there was the normal—but nothing abnormal—reduction of the number of unemployed pensioners, and now that winter is approaching Premier Macdonald is up against it. The unemployed list is gradually—normally, of course—increasing, and the Labor government will find it hard to explain the failure of their much boomed "remedy."

Strongly For "Free Trade."

For political party purposes, British Labor is strongly for "Free Trade" (despite the highly 'protectionist' nature of the Trade Union organization and ideals) and one of the first things Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden did was to abolish the so-called "McKenna duties"—a war-time protectionist measure imposing extra taxation on various manufactures, motor-cars, pianos, etc., normally largely imported from abroad but which could be and were being manufactured in Britain.

This was hailed as a triumph for Free Trade, but unfortunately it led to many British factories closing down. The protectionist press naturally made the most of this, but eliminating all suggestions of partisan bias, the cold official figures issued by the Ministry of Labor showed that within three weeks from the abolition of the McKenna duties, Britain's unemployed list was increased by over 74,000, and that unemployment was increasing at the rate of about 16,000 per week. On that date the number of employed was 1,122,200—or 163,423 less than just before Macdonald took office. According to plain statistics, this 163,423 will be more than wiped out under normal conditions before mid-winter.

Remedy Has Failed.

Whether the claim of opposing politicians that this state of affairs is due to the abolition of the McKenna duties is true or not, it is an embarrassing fact for the Macdonald government to face, that their remedy for unemployment has failed to materialize. And the unemployed man, with a vote is not likely to be so fair in his appraisement of Macdonald's achievements as the comfortably housed and fed observer who admits that it is not Macdonald's fault.

The trouble was that Macdonald and all leading labor politicians said at the last election that they had a sure solution to the unemployment problem, but once in office they found that the solution was not so clean-cut or easy of realization as they had imagined. What the solution was has never been disclosed.

One of the things that has brought matters to a crisis politically is the opposition expressed by British miners to the Dawes plan of setting Germany on her feet. British Labor has always expressed friendliness towards Germany—many Labor leaders including Ramsay Macdonald bitterly opposed the war—and since the signing of the Versailles Treaty, British Labor, by innumerable speeches and resolutions has urged the restoration of German industry and credit, and the cancellation of idemnities, penalties, etc.

Miners Change Stand.

Yet the moment Premier Ramsay Macdonald had secured adoption of the Dawes plan by the Allies, the Miners Federation of Great Britain decided that it would cut into their industry too much and proceeded to demand its abandonment. Since the war, when they had, admittedly a fat, and favored trade, British miners have been hard hit, and the occupation of the Ruhr—however it might have been denounced by Labor leaders—brought grist to the mill of the British miner. The application of the Dawes plan, according to the miners' executive, threatens further setbacks and losses, with inevitable unemployment to British coal miners. Let the Germans pay "reparations in kind" any way they like, but not in coal, say British miners. Ramsay Macdonald has temporarily sidestepped receiving a miners' deputation, but he cannot evade this burning issue. And the matter will not end with the miners, for most of the other trades affected will take similar action, according to close observers.

Furnishes Political Capital.

The idea—cleverly fostered by the Rothermere Press—that the setting of Germany on her feet industrially and financially will hurt British trade and industry, has cut into the nation's mind, and increasing unemployment returns provide Labor's opponents with much political capital.

The Russian agreement, for which Labor—as a political unit—has been agitating since the conclusion of hostilities, now seems something in the nature of "Dead Sea Fruit" for it is clear that the Soviets' promise nothing except that if Britain lends one pound they may possibly pay back five shillings of previous debts. This is the point Conservative and Liberal political managers are taking—and Labor has no satisfactory answer to the charge. It is now generally conceded that if Parliament rejects the Russian Treaty, when it reassembles September 30, the Labor government would not risk an election on this point.

Mark Twain's home at Redding, Conn., was at one time visited by burglars. After their visit Mark Twain tacked the following sign on his front door: "Notice to the Next Burglar: There is nothing but plated ware in this house now and henceforth. You will find it in the brass thing in the dining room over in the corner by the basket with the kittens. If you want the basket, put the kittens in the brass thing.

"Do not make a noise; it disturbs the family. You will find rubbers in the front hall by that thing which has umbrellas in it; chiffonier, I think they call it, or pergola, or something like that. Please close the door when you go!"

"Prestige"

Strange are the ways of words. Of which there is no better example than the fact that "prestige," which names the power or influence of a good reputation, should have had its beginning in the tricks of a juggler! Yet that is how it started.

"Prestige" goes back to the Latin "praestigiae," meaning juggling tricks—the same derivation as our "prestidigitation" which is sleight-of-hand. And the explanation of this strange transition is in the fact that in the myth and goblin-tenanted days of the far-distant past, juggling tricks were supposed to manifest enchantment, which was regarded with the very highest admiration and respect hence "prestige."

Our Country

We inhabit a country which has been signalized in the great history of freedom. We live under forms of government more favorable to its diffusion than any other the world has known. A succession of incidents of rare curiosity and almost mysterious connection has marked out America as a great theater of political reform. Many circumstances stand recorded in our annals connected with the assertion of human rights which, were we not familiar with them, would fill even our minds with amazement.—Edward Everett.

New Explanation for Disasters on Ocean

In explanation of collisions at sea it is said to be a scientific fact that a very large liner moving through shallow water will attract small craft toward her. This theory was first put forward when the White Star liner Olympic collided with the British destroyer Hawke, whose captain stated on oath that his vessel was sucked toward the big liner and refused to answer her helm at all. He was laughed at then, but not so long afterward the ill-fated Titanic started on her maiden voyage. As she steamed down Southampton docks the American liner New York, an eleven-thousand-ton ship, began to get uneasy at her berth alongside the quay. Presently her stout mooring ropes snapped, one after another, and she started to move out toward the White Star ship. The Titanic was immediately stopped, while tugs got hold of the New York and towed her back into safety. During the war there was another proof of the theory, this time by the Olympic again. A German submarine sidled up to her and was getting ready to torpedo her, when the suction drew the U-boat close up under the liner's stern, and the blades of her great propeller ripped open the submarine from stem to stern.

Old Weather "Saws" Based on Good Sense

Admiral Fitzroy, who invented the barometer and commanded the brig Beagle on its expedition to the American coast in 1831, declares that most of the old "saws" regarding weather are reliable and based on commonsense investigation. As a weather expert he commended an old saying to the effect that the glow of dawn high in the sky denotes wind, and a low dawn fair weather. He bade us believe that soft-looking, delicate clouds mean wind-fair weather, and hard ruddy ones wind. Mist on a hilltop means rain and wind if it stays long or comes down—fine weather if it rises and disperses. Rain is due when distant objects look near as on what is called a good hearing day. And rain is foretold by pigs carrying straws to sties. The pig as a prophet appears in an old riddle: Question: Why is a storme to followe presently when a company of hogges runne crying home? Answer: A hog is most dull and of a melancholy nature; and so by reason doth foretell the rain that cometh. In time of raine, most catteli doe pricke up their ears; as for example an asse will, when he perceiveth a storme of raine or hail doth follow.

Story of Elgin

We might use the glamorous words of childhood's fairy tales, "Long ago and far away," to tell the tale of Elgin cathedral, whose seven hundredth birthday was celebrated last August 5 and 6. So long ago as the twilight time of the early Middle ages, so far away as Rome, must we go for the beginnings of the story of this hoary old pile, whose influence has been casting its spell upon the lives of the dwellers in the old province of Moray from that far-off time to the present. There is an old tradition that the Culdees founded the church to begin with, just as they did that of Birnie. In any case, the site was already hallowed by many sacred associations, when Bishop Andrew Moray, scion of the powerful house of De Moravia, moved the Cathedral of Spynie to the Church of Holy Trinity in Elgin.

LAST REGISTRATION DAY.

Saturday, October 4, is the last of the three days for the personal registration of voters in Connellsville and Uniontown.

Although registration on the two preceding days showed gains over last year the total revealed the fact that only about one-half of those eligible for qualification as voters have taken the necessary steps.

The number of those who have failed to register is so large that they will have to attend to that duty as early as possible on the last day, otherwise there will be such a rush in the closing hours as will overwhelm the registrars.

The polling places will be open at such hours during the day that the majority of voters can be accommodated without inconvenience to themselves or the registrars. If they defer making their visit until late in the evening registrants will find it necessary to wait in a long line of citizens before their turn comes. This unpleasant experience can be avoided by registering in the morning or at noon.

Connellsville residents ought to take pride in doing their full part to free Pennsylvania of the discredit it now suffers from being one of the states in which the percentage of votes cast is the lowest. In 1920 there were but 12 states which made a poorer showing than the Keystone State, and these were located in the south. In that year Pennsylvania tied with North Carolina for thirty-sixth place in the rate at which its residents exercised the right of franchise.

Pennsylvania's showing in this respect was largely due to the indifference of citizens to complete their qualifications as voters. Are you going to remain in that classification by neglecting or refusing to attend to your duty on the last registration day?

OUR ANNUAL PRIVILEGE.

Citizens of the Connellsville district accept as a matter of course the return of the time when the annual Salvation Army Home Service Appeal is made.

This organization has become so much a fixture, and the service it performs in the community is so necessary and also so well known, that the people as a whole regard taking a share in its support as one of the obligations that cannot be disregarded. In fact, to have such a part is esteemed an annual privilege by all those who have interest and concern in knowing that the unfortunate persons in this section are not allowed to suffer for lack of those things necessary to their bodily comfort. The Salvation Army performs this service so efficiently and so impartially that it has long ago been accepted as the best agency for dispensing charity.

It is, therefore, merely the matter of raising the relatively small budget in order to insure this work being carried on with fidelity during another year. John Davis of South Connellsville, well qualified for the task and known to all the people of both his own borough and the city, has been selected leader in the budget campaign. He will make selection of his team captains and they in turn will enlist the workers in readiness to start the campaign on Sunday, October 12.

If the persons solicited to have a part in this work respond as readily as did Mr. Davis, the organization can be completed without waste of time and it will be ready for its duty at the appointed time. If the citizens in turn respond with equal cheerfulness to the appeal for funds, the raising of the budget will be a comparatively easy matter.

Failure in any of these respects would not be in accordance with the habits and traditions of this community in matters relating to objects which are deserving of support by all the people.

The diligence and care with which David Lawrence's accurate reviews of political conditions in the several states are being read in the office of a contemporary, show a keener desire than was suspected to learn the truth about how far Davis and Bryan are trailing behind in the race.

The presentation of the petition for the South Connellsville bridge ought to be such an occasion as will cause the grand jury to realize that the section north and east of Mount Braddock, Dunbar and Connellsville is much the most important part of Fayette county.

Judging from the results it would not be a bad idea to make every Sunday "Rally Day" in the Sunday schools.

In addition to registering Saturday, October 4 and voting Tuesday, November 4, all good citizens will keep in mind October 12, the day of the Salvation Army Home Service Appeal; Armistice Day, Tuesday, November 11; Red Cross Roll Call beginning the same day; then the sale of Christmas Seals every day until the end of the year.

The people of the mid-west, as well as all other sections, are themselves campaigning for President Coolidge while he attends to his duties in Washington. David Lawrence's review of conditions as they are naturally makes him a great newspaper sinner in the eyes of the partisan Democratic sheets.

The Around the World Flight ended just in time to give the World Series a place on the front pages.

Some of the recent cases in court give it new angle to a study of natural history.

Register Saturday, October 4 if you wish afterward to enjoy the peace of mind that comes from doing your duty.

Is There No Responsibility for Crime

Pittsburg Gazette Times.

If Clarence S. Darrow has been correctly quoted, the lawyer who managed to save the lives of Loeb and Leopold believes society should be lenient with the monstrous Lawrence M. Hight, poisoner. His view, as reported, is that "the Hight case is simply a case of where the primitive instincts were too strong for the inhibitions." Carry this to a logical conclusion and all the laws which society has made for the protection of its members would be set aside, or almost any crime which may be imagined is simply an act of reversion to the primitive.

In the Darrow philosophy allowance is made for the "original human being, wholly ruled by impulse," who should be treated differently from one who is restrained by the rules, habits and customs made, recognized and practiced by society. Allowance is made in our laws for "primitive instincts." One who kills on impulse, in a moment of great excitement or provocation, acting on the promptings of surging passion, does not look in vain for that pity which leads naturally to clemency. But this kind of a killer is very different from the one who slays or in conspiracy with another deliberately plans a crime and executes it.

The workings of primitive instinct cannot be pleaded on behalf of such as Hight, Loeb and Leopold. They consciously and deliberately defied the rules, habits and customs of society. They consciously elected to risk the penalties provided for the crimes they plotted and carried out. What right have they to expect clemency? If crime is to be regarded as atavism, none can be held responsible for its commission. What a sweet world it would be then.

LaFolletteism Is Socialism

By FRED R. MARVIN,
Editor Searchlight Depart., New York Commercial.

Who Is Burton K. Wheeler?

Who is Burton K. Wheeler?

He is the candidate for Vice-President on the Socialist ticket.

Two years ago Burton K. Wheeler was candidate for governor of Montana. He was named as a Democrat, but was denounced and repudiated by the leading Democrats of his state, among them Senator H. L. Myers, who charged Wheeler's nomination to the work of "the worst elements in society."

Those "worst elements in society" were Bill Dunne, Dewey C. Dorrmann and what they represented.

Bill Dunn was, at that time, the leader of the I. W. W. in Montana. He had, for many years, been known as a disturbing element in the industrial life of that state. He had caused a great deal of trouble in Butte, being responsible for a vast amount of lawlessness. As the editor of the Butte Bulletin he had denounced the government and during the war was charged with seditious actions.

The character of Bill Dunne will be understood when it is known that he was one of the Communists arrested at Bridgman, Michigan, is now out under bond charged with criminal syndicalism in Michigan, is closely connected with the Communist international, and is one of the editors of "The Daily Worker," a Communist paper printed in Chicago, said to be largely supported by contributions which comes direct from Soviet Russia.

Dewey C. Dorrmann was an I. W. W. agitator in North Dakota. He was one of the leaders of the I. W. W. riots at Minot, that state, some years ago. He was arrested and found guilty of the charges. On the witness stand he swore he did not believe in this country and that "the flag was nothing but a rag"; that this government should be destroyed.

Later Dorrmann became connected with the Nonpartisan League, a name used by the Socialists of North Dakota and a number of other states, to deceive the farmers. Dorman moved to Montana, where he became the state manager for the Nonpartisan League, or, in other words, manager of the Socialists.

Dunne and Dormann at once joined hands to capture the Democratic party and so the state. Dunne worked wholly among the radical labor element and Dormann among the radical farmers.

Burton K. Wheeler, as district attorney for Montana, had shown his sympathy for the I. W. W. by refusing to prosecute acts of sabotage. Dunne and Dormann at once picked him as candidate for their governor. He was nominated.

But the people of Montana knew the record of Dunne and Dormann. And they knew the record of Burton K. Wheeler. Leading Democrats denounced this brazen move to capture the party. These Democrats went upon the stump and campaigned for the entire Republican ticket with the exception of one man who was not influenced by this "worst element in society." Wheeler was defeated.

Then the same element, with additional and other backing, got behind Wheeler and secured his nomination on the Democratic ticket for the United States Senate. Lack of interest in the campaign resulted in his election.

Burton K. Wheeler is now the candidate of the Socialist Party for Vice-President of the United States.

Just Folks

THE DREAM MAN.

Lullabye, rockabye, here comes the Dream man!
Bringing sweet dreams from the village of sleep.
"Fresh dreams and bright ones, and lovely all-night ones!"
Hear his voice calling: "The prices are cheap!
"Come look them over, dreams sweet as the clover!
Dreams I am sure every babe will enjoy!
Come while they last now, I'm selling them fast now!
Dreams for a girl and dreams for a boy!"

Lullabye, rockabye, hear his bell ringing,
Softly and sweetly, as evening comes down.
Just hear him calling as night time is falling:
"Come, all you babies, the Dream man's in town!
"Dreams, old and new ones, and lovely and true ones!
Dreams of enchantment and dreams of delight!
Dreams that will gladden you, dreams that won't sadden you!
Wonderful dreams! Oh, who wants one tonight?"

Lullabye, rockabye! Hush now, my darling,
Listen! He's crying his wonderful wares!
"Dreams! They are dandy ones, cookie and candy ones!
Dreams about woolly dogs, dreams about bears!
Dreams that are surely made, dreams that are purely made!
Dreams you can have if your eyes are shut tight!
Dreams you can smile through, and sleep all the while through!
Dreams for the babies! Who wants one tonight?"

Mr. and Mrs. John Sauers entertained at their Vine street home at a dinner on Saturday. Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Sisler, grandson, and son, David, Miss Mildred Stamm of Altoona, and Mrs. Howard Miner and son George, of Scottdale.

New Fall Hats Combine Dull and Shiny Fabrics

Very small high-crowned shapes with narrow rolled or straight brims, shorter at the back than at the front, characterize the new hats.

The Spanish influence is emphasized and is featured in the high, flat-crowned type of hat with straight sailor brim.

Felt reigns supreme, and is used in every shade on the color card. Brown, however, takes precedence. The new brown is a soft, rich tone of chestnut. In addition, the light pinkish tones of cinnamon and cafe au lait are indorsed.

Combinations of suede and satin, felt and satin, and panne and felt, stand out conspicuously. In other words, the vogue for the combination of a brilliant and a dull-finished fabric, which has been the strong note in costumes for the last two seasons, is now featured in hats.

Ribbons and cire braid are extensively employed. Very novel treatments of cut felt are used; the felt motif is appliqued to shapes covered in satin, metal, or panne velvet. Many of the cut felt designs are in complicated floral patterns.

Two-color combinations and two-tone combinations both are favored in these felt appliques.

Trimmings are less and less in vogue, and practically all the hats are now featured inconspicuously trimmed with a fancy band, or a band in self fabric, a tuft of wings or aigrettes, or a single flower.

Not for Himself Alone

Man was not made for himself alone. No, he was made for his country, by the obligations of the social compact; he was made for his species, by the Christian duties of universal charity; he was made for all ages past, by the sentiment of reverence for his forefathers; and he was made for all future times, by the impulse of affection for his progeny. The voice of history has not, in all its compass, a note that does not answer in unison with these sentiments.—John Quincy Adams.

No Other Way

Maude—Could you bring yourself to marry a man who was your intellectual inferior?

Christabel—I suppose I shall have to.

Home So Different

And he can't manage her.

STATE'S DIRT ROADS MUST BE IMPROVED; THEN WIDEN OTHERS

To be the Policy of the State Highway Department, Says Wright.

ANY OTHER COURSE UNFAIR

HARRISBURG, Sept. 29.—"Pennsylvania cannot begin widening of pavement until important sections of the state now entirely without improved roads are got from the mud," said Highway Secretary Paul D. Wright today.

Mr. Wright referred to a criticism of the Department of Highways made by certain people of Coatesville. Recently the department completed a concrete thoroughfare on the Lincoln Highway from Coatesville to Downingtown. It replaced a worn-out macadam road. Coatesville people who plan to observe the formal opening of this new thoroughfare on Thursday have said their gathering is to be a "meeting of protest," because the 18-foot roadway is "not wide enough."

"The Department admits cheerfully there are many main state highway sections not so wide as they should be," continued Secretary Wright. "But we also take the stand that the day of 'Special Privilege' is past; that no one section of Pennsylvania should benefit at the expense of another. There are people in Coatesville who ask us to favor that city and Downingtown at the expense of other parts of Pennsylvania.

"Were we to put down between Downingtown and Coatesville a wide concrete boulevard, what would be said to us and of us by those Pennsylvanians living on the 5,000 miles of absolutely unimproved state highway? Of course Coatesville wants a 24-foot or a 38-foot road! So do dozens of others sections. But the people who travel 5,000 miles of earth state roads will be satisfied with 16 feet of anything that will keep them out of the mud. A sense of proportion is very necessary at times.

"Our nine named thoroughfares should be 40 feet in width. But it is not possible merely to rub a lamp and get roads. The days of magicians are passed. And hundreds of thousands of Pennsylvanians on 5,000 miles of earth state roads ask merely that we get them out of the mud."

It was recommended by William H. Connell, engineering executive of the Department of Highways, that provision should be made at this time for the ultimate width of all state highways, so the pavements can be widened as traffic warrants and the money becomes available. In the meantime, half the state highway system is earth roads; and much of this earth road is highly important. It must be improved.

"The department recommends that in all cases the width of the right-of-way determined upon for state highways shall provide not only for estimated future highway traffic, but also for pedestrain traffic. It is recommended that highways should all be laid out with an ultimate right-of-way width of 80 to 120 feet. These widths in all cases should provide a sufficient number of 10-foot traffic lanes to care for estimated future road use; and also sidewalk space for pedestrians. The Lincoln Highway, William Penn and other named roads should have a 40-foot pavement, which will give space for two-fast-moving and two slow-moving traffic lanes in each direction. When the money is available this improvement will be brought about. In the meantime the state of Pennsylvania must not forget the people who live along or who use the 5,000 miles of dirt on the state highway system."

SAVORY SOUFFLES

A souffle is light, dainty, satisfying without overburdening the digestive system, a dish especially gratifying to the jaded and overindulged appetite. A plain souffle which may be the foundation for dozens of good dishes is prepared in the following manner:

Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter and add two tablespoonfuls of flour stirring to a smooth paste; now add one cupful of milk and pepper and salt to taste, cooking to a smooth creamy sauce. Remove from the heat and add the yolks of three eggs, one at a time, beating well; cool the mixture and fold in the stiffly beaten whites very carefully. Bake in buttered ramekins or in a large glass baking dish; set in a pan of hot water. Bake twenty-five minutes. Serve at once, for three minutes waiting will ruin its fluffy, golden deliciousness. This recipe with the omission of the pepper and adding a bit of vanilla and sugar, served with whipped cream or powdered sugar, cream and butter, well mixed, makes a very dainty dessert.

For a cheese souffle add one teaspoonful of lemon juice and three-fourths of a cupful of snappy, grated cheese before the whites are folded in, using the foundation above.

Chicken souffle is prepared by adding one-half to one cupful of finely chopped cooked chicken, using the chicken broth instead of milk. Serve the broth with a few chopped mushrooms as a sauce.

Lobster Souffle.—Take one cupful of cooked, minced lobster meat, adding lemon juice, chopped onion, minced parsley with cubes of the reddest of the meat for a garnish.

Mushroom Souffle.—Use a cupful of finely minced fresh mushrooms—the canned will do—and a teaspoonful of mushroom catsup. Serve with a white sauce in which chicken broth takes the place of milk.

Carrots, corn, celery, with a teaspoonful of onion juice or chopped parsley add zest to any of these vegetable souffles

Why He Changed Name

Sam was the new office boy in the Business Girl's office. When he was hired she asked him if his whole name were not Samuel, but like Topsy he claimed he was "Just Sam." Several weeks went by. Sam was a very small boy for his age and not at all strong for his size. As there were several men in the office Sam had very little heavy work to do, and it was understood in the office that the heavy work would have to be done by some one huskier than Sam.

One day Sam confided to the Business Girl that he had changed his name to Sam—he said his name had been much worse than that. When the Business Girl asked what his name had been originally he replied, modestly and rather sheepishly "Samson."—New York Sun.

Cokers, With Improved Offensive, Play to Tie With Mount Pleasant Hi

Score Stands at 6-6 When Grid Battle at Fayette Field Closes.

JEANNETTE COMES NEXT

Showing a slight offensive improvement, but still lacking the dash necessary to score touchdowns when the opportunity offered, the Connellsville High School football team played to a 6-6 tie with Mount Pleasant High here on Saturday. The Cokers scored first and Mount Pleasant tied things up in the final quarter.

"Speeder" Lowe's nifty catch of a forward pass, followed by a 30-yard dash over the line was responsible for the touchdown. It was a pretty bit of football and as it was practically the only opportunity offered Connellsvillians to root, they made the best of it.

Mount Pleasant, like West Newton, has an exceptionally good team for a small town this season. It is a well-balanced eleven and has a backfield of men who are hard to stop.

The chief play of the visitors was a smashing tackle drive, similar to a flying wedge. Time and again it punctured the Connellsville line and usually netted from three to eight yards. At intervals the man with the ball squirmed through and it seemed nearly certain he would get away.

There was no scoring in the first half. Following the opening of the second half the Cokers were pushed steadily down the field. Then a fumble gave the locals the ball and a forward pass netted 25 yards. Another pass, Trump to Lowe, was completed and "Speeder" dashed 30 yards to the goal posts.

Once more pushing down the field Mount Pleasant worked the ball to Connellsville's seven-yard line before that period ended. It required two downs in the fourth quarter to score. Neither team succeeded in scoring its point after touchdown and the game resulted in a tie.

As a whole the outcome was very disappointing but fans were given glimpses of form that indicates the Cokers will probably "come through" after further seasoning. "Newt" Stillwagon, the husky end, had an off-day but there is no doubt he can deliver. Johnson got into the game and gets a lot of credit for his playing. His tackling was hard and he got down the field fast under punts.

There was a big crowd at the contest and while the weather was ideal for the spectators, it was entirely too warm for comfort for those participating in the grid pastime.

In the American League the Washington club is sure of nothing worse than a tie for first place. The season will close Wednesday.

Confluence Wins Over Dunbar Twp.

Although the Dunbar Township High School football team outplayed the strong Confluence High School eleven in every stage of the game, the township squad could do no better than finish second in a 6-0 score in the inaugural tilt of the season for the local school. The only score of the game came in the second quarter when Meyers scooped up a fumble on Confluence's 15 yard line and ran 35 yards for a touchdown. The extra point kick was blocked.

"Mike" Zeka, 160 pound fullback for the township eleven, hailing from Vanderbilt, was the individual star of the game. "Zeka," playing his second year for the school, made a total gain of 123 yards. He made six first downs. Dunbar Township's total gain was 152 yards. The team made 11 first downs.

Confluence was unbale to penetrate the township line. Repeated efforts were of no avail and the visitors resorted to the aerial attack which netted 72 yards; four being completed. The total gain for Confluence was 116 yards. They made eight first downs. Groff, fullback, starred for the visitors.

Dunbar Township received the kick-off in the first quarter, but the ball was kept in mid-field during the early part of the game. Neither team gave way, Zeka being the only man who could penetrate the line. Dunbar punted twice, while Confluence was obliged to kick three times.

The ball went on Dunbar's 20-yard line in the second quarter when Zeka tore through left tackle for a 60 yard run, being downed by the visitors' "safety man." Dunbar began a march to the goal line. On the visitors' 15-yard line, a criss-cross buck play was called by the home eleven, but the ball was fumbled and Meyers picked it up and ran 85 yards for a touchdown.

Dunbar kicked off in the second half. Confluence was unable to gain and was forced to punt. Dunbar threatened in this quarter. Exchange of punts put the ball in Dunbar hands on Confluence's 40-yard line. The township eleven made three first downs, putting the ball on the 10-yard line. Rusinko was thrown for a five-yard loss and Zeka regained the ground. Shallenberger gained four around right end. With fourth down and six to go for a touchdown, Confluence stopped Zeka on the two yard line and punted out of danger.

The last quarter was another period in which the home eleven threatened to tie the game. An exchange of punts brought the ball to the Confluence 18-yard line but the ball was punted out of danger when the visitors held. With the ball in midfield, Sweeney went in as quarterback and the Dunbar eleven began to march goalward. The team gained 27 yards in two minutes but the game ended with the ball on the 23-yard line.

A big change will be made in the line-up in the next game, to be played Friday afternoon with the Mount Pleasant High School at Mount Pleasant.

A large crowd witnessed the game. Ideal baseball weather greeted the griddors Saturday. About 300 students from the township high school attended and their cheering was excellent at all stages of the game.

Coach C. C. Shaffer of the Confluence team slipped a smile in the second quarter when the township eleven tried the criss-cross buck that resulted in a fumble and a touchdown for the visitors. The "buck" play defeated the Confluence eleven, 6-0, last year and the grid mentor was on the look-out for this. He had his men watching for this play and they broke it up on two occasions.

INJURED IN GAME WITH WEST VIRGINIA

John Moore

Former Connellsville High gridder, playing guard for West Virginia Wesleyan, was compelled to retire from the game at opening of new stadium of West Virginia University at Morgantown Saturday because of injury to shoulder, near close of first half. In the first quarter he recovered fumble by the Mountaineers on the five-yard line and prevented a goal. W. V. U. won, 20 to 6. Thirteen thousand persons paid $2 each to see the game.

"Ted" Pritchard Pitches Closing St. Paul Contest

The honor of twirling the closing game of the year for the St. Paul club, champions of the American Association, went to a local lad, Joseph Theodore Pritchard, crack port sider, who makes his home at Leisenring No. 1 during the winter, was given this honor and pitched his first full game for the club turning in a victory yesterday, defeating Louisville 11 to 6, in a weird game at St. Paul. Although nicked for 14 safeties, he kept them well scattered. His mates garnered 19 hits and were helped along by four errors. St. Paul dropped the first game in the double-header yesterday, 14 to 5.

Pritchard, known as "Ted," recently joined the St. Paul club, being sold by the Milwaukee outfit of the same league. He went to Milwaukee from Flint, Mich. "Ted" is well known throughout Fayette county for his athletic ability. He will make his home with his parents this winter and expects to play basketball with one of the local quintets.

Gridiron Glimpses.

"Bob" Hilliard was injected into the line-up Saturday. His interference was so slow, however, that it interfered with him.

* * *

"Speeder" Lowe proved the truth of his nickname after he caught the forward pass Saturday that resulted in the touchdown. He skipped through the entire secondary defense of the visitors.

* * *

Next Saturday the Cokers will meet a stiff opponent in Jeannette. This week will see one of the hardest schedules yet undertaken on the program.

* * *

Mount Pleasant was accompanied by a good-sized cheering squad.

* * *

Stillwagon brought down a cheer when he went down the field under a punt and made a flying tackle of the man who received the ball.

* * *

To Mount Pleasant the tie was nearly as good as a victory.

* * *

The Celtic football team, playing its first game at Dunbar Saturday, defeated the club there. The locals contend married men composed the greater portion of Dunbar's line-up. The Celtics are anxious to arrange further games with teams in the 16-18 year class. The score Saturday was 30-0.

* * *

The Argonne Eleven, representing the Catholic Athletic Club at Hecla, playing the second game of the season was downed by the strong United gridders Saturday at United, 6-0. In the first game of the year, the Argonne outfit defeated Mount Pleasant by the same score.

* * *

The Brownsville Independents got off to a winning start yesterday by defeating the Charleroi Collegians, 27-0, in the opening game of the season at West Brownsville. Long, left halfback for Brownsville scored a touchdown and booted three extra-pointers. Poletz, quarterback, carried the ball over twice, while Lascelles, righthalf counted once with a touchdown.

* * *

Peter Herman, Forwatt, who is making his home temporarily at Braddock, attending the night sessions at Westinghouse Tech was injected into the football line-up Saturday. Peter was put in as a substitute at right end and played a bang-up game. He played three quarters. Herman is a graduate of the Dunbar Township High School and played right end for the school last year. Westinghouse battled to a 6-6 tie with the Carnegie Tech freshmen. Next Saturday, the Westinghouse eleven clashes with Greensburg.

* * *

Frank Tarr, Bethany College halfback, will probably be lost to the Bison squad for the rest of the season as the result of an injury received in the final practice before the Salem game. Tarr had his left knee wrenched which will lay him up for some time. Even after he does recover it will probably not be strong enough for him to be able to go back into the game.

Grid Glimpses at Trotter Field.

"Bill" Hudkins, right guard for the Dunbar team, was carried off the field in the second quarter. He was kicked above the eye on the second kick off. Lining up for the play after the kick-off, "Bill" keeled over.

* * *

Michael Zeka, star fullback on the Dunbar eleven, has developed a "charley-horse." "Zeke" worked hard during the game and the leg "went bad" on him during the latter part. He managed to play through the last [illegible].

* * *

"Bill" Gillespie, right tackle on the Dunbar squad, and Meyers, left guard for the Confluence eleven were knocked out in the second quarter when Meyers came up the touchdown. Gillespie tackled Meyers about a yard from the goal line and the two were thrown over the line. Both [illegible] the game.

* * *

Van Sickle of the Confluence grid [illegible] the [illegible] ankle in the last [illegible] taken out of the [illegible] was [illegible] out in [illegible]

* * *

[illegible] the numerous [illegible] were they recovered by its own men. One fumble was made in the first and second quarters, the second proving costly. Two were made in the last quarter but were recovered.

* * *

"Buck" Haas, plucky right end for the Dunbar eleven, was knocked cold in the third quarter but finished the game.

* * *

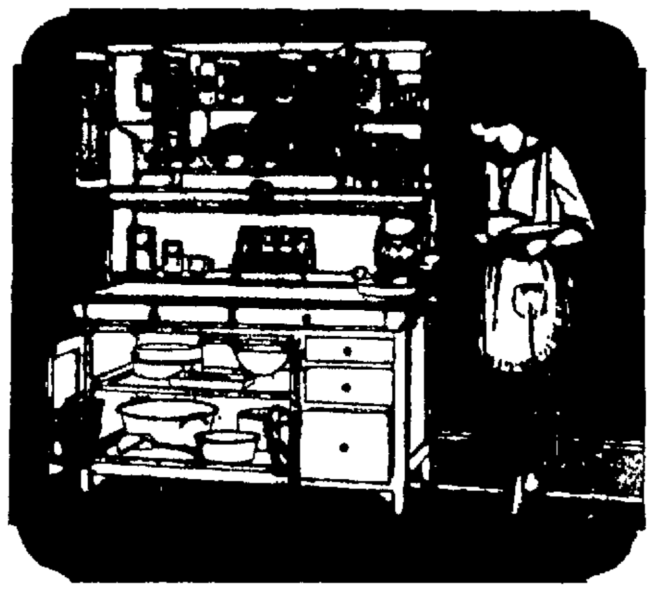

"Slick" Sweeney, 115-pound quarterback substituted for Landymore in the last quarter. Sweeney made an excellent showing in the little time he was in the game. He showed skill in handling the team and it worked wonderfully under him.

The Paramount

"THE CODE OF THE WILDERNESS."—Those who enjoy good riding and rapid action will find much of interest in "The Code of the Wilderness," the David Smith production which opened at the Paramount Theatre for two days. The story is an adaptation of Charles Alden Seltzer's popular novel of ranch life. In making the film David Smith showed his familiarity with outdoor life in the little human interest touches he introduced for atmosphere.

The picture opens with a buckboard caught in the river and the rescue of the occupants by the ranch boss. This provides opportunity for a touch of humor, which is well handled by Otis Harlan. This actor provides considerable mirth throughout the production to lighten the more intense moments in which stirring action occurs.

One of the most interesting sequences shows the breaking of a horse for use in the round up This action was apparently performed by experts and provides a few moments of genuine thrills, which are later eclipsed by a daring fall from horseback made by Alice Calhoun and the ride of Alan Hale across the plains at the end of a lariat.

The Soisson

"THE WHITE MOTH"—Now being shown at the Soisson Theatre, is one of the most sensational and colorful stories that has been made for First National. Maurice Tourneur spared no expense in building magnificent settings and engaged an expensive cast to work with him. Hundreds of pretty girls were used in the chorus scenes and the Bal des Artistes.

Two extraordinary settings were built to form the background for the tense moments. One was the interior of a French theatre. Six hundred people were employed to act as the audience in addition to a 30-piece orchestra. Two elaborate settings were used in the stage, one, for a specially staged dance.

The other impressive set is an exact reproduction of the grand ball room of the Tuileries Palace. In this setting is held the Bal des Artistes. Seven hundred people, all in different costumes, are seen This scene is a typical Parisian ball and shows the carefree and abandon manner with which these affairs are conducted.

Barbara La Marr, together with Conway Tearle, play the leading roles.

Charles de Roche, the French actor, plays the heavy part.

Other members of the cast include Josie Sedgwick, Edna Murphy, Ben Lyon, Kathleen Kirkham and William Orlamond.

The Orpheum

MARINE BAND.—Program making is an art that calls for the keenest inspiration and a thorough insight into the musical needs of the people. Anyone can put together a program which will include some pretty melodies, a classic or two, and let it go at that, but to provide an entertainment of music that will please all classes of minds and tastes and at the same time run the gamut of the emotions as well as prove to be instructive in a musical way requires talent of the highest order

This we have in the programs of the United States Marine Band, prepared by Captain William H Santelmann, its leader, assisted by the Second Leader of the Band, Taylor Branson, under the supervision of William L. Radcliffe, under whose direction the tours of the Marine Band are made. Leader Santelmann has conducted this band before some of the most cosmopolitan audiences in the world, is thoroughly familiar with the popular taste in music and is a student as well of the before some of the most cosmopolitan A program as prepared by the three men noted above might well be referred to as a classic itself. An opportunity to judge two of these programs will be given when the Marine Band appears here tonight at the Orpheum Theatre.

The Arcade

"COME ALONG MARY COMPANY."—The "Come Along Mary Company," which opens a week's engagement at the Arcade Theatre today, is reputed to be the best of the Harvey D'orr shows, and D'orr has been credited with some mighty fine shows. The company consists of 20 people, and has special scenery and settings for the different numbers. The cast includes some fine dancers and a big chorus of pretty girls. They will make three complete changes of program during their stay here. The picture program includes another funny episode of "The Gumps," entitled "Uncle Bim's Gift." The usual bargain matinee for the ladies will be in vogue throughout the week. Splendid music by the Arcade Theatre Orchestra.

The Strand

"MONSIEUR BEAUCAIRE"—Rudolph Valentino's first week in a motion picture studio since 1922 was a strenuous one. Out at the Paramount Long Island studio, where he made "Monsieur Beaucaire" under the direction of Sidney Olcott, the popular star was besieged by friends who wanted to wish him well and to witness the launching of the picture, which brings Valentino back under the Paramount banner.

The week opened with the star giving a luncheon party for the members of the cast which was to produce "Beaucaire." It was a fellowship luncheon, and Mr. Valentino, in informal talk, drove home the fact that it was not a Valentino picture they were about to make, but "Monsieur Beaucaire" and that everyone in the cast was just as important as he.

On the following day, the official opening of the picture, 40 newspaper men and magazine writers were guests at a luncheon at the studio, given as a welcome to the star. In spite of all visitors Director Olcott succeeded in working every day and scene after scene were completed in rapid succession until now the picture the greatest thing Valentino has ever attempted, is ready for the picture public and opens a three days' run today at the Strand Theatre, Scottdale.

WOMEN TALKING POLITICS IN THE BEAUTY EMPORIUMS

CHICAGO, Sept. 29—Beauty shops are the great arena now of political discussions by women, declared Dr Nellie Buchanan Cooper, president of the American Cosmeticians' Society, in an address here.

"Politics is being talked every day in thousands of beauty shops in every state," said Dr Cooper. "The old joke about the barber who talks all the time will not apply to women because they like to talk. The beauty shop has the same place in women's lives that the barber shop has in men's.

"A busy beauty shop is an arena of political discussion all day long. The cosmetician, bending over her client, smoothing out a wrinkle or banishing a double chin, is talking politics and the client comes back with her political ideas through the folds of a hot towel The client getting a water wave and the cosmetician manipulating the comb and tongs are engaged in serious discussion of laws for the benefit of women. The woman getting her sunburned hair touched up and the expert giving her the treatment are talking about what the legislature ought to do.

"Women are taking their politics seriously and are not interested in talking about baseball scores. Legislative questions affecting women's welfare are the principal topics on which all women have something to say now. The need for laws for the protection of the public is a daily subject. When women want anything politically they are going to have it and the beauty shop is growing to be the place where women's politics is discussed. Lawmakers will do well to take into consideration the beauty shop vote."

"Doctor, won't you stop this painful recitation of hallucinations?" pleaded the secretary to Lawson. "You know tomorrow he will retract everything."

"The day came," continued Lancaster, "when a committee of visiting surgeons was to witness the operation. He thought that he had learned it. His vanity led him to go to the hospital in person after he had brought me to Avonmouth. The patient died, but he alone was responsible for that. And that is where you come into the case, Joan. I managed to get word with you, and Myers followed you to this institute in order to forestall me if possible."

"Doctor Lancaster, you did not steal the funds," said Joan calmly. "Do you not see the hold these two men have managed to obtain over you? They stole the funds, and their object in drugging you was to get rid of you, the sole evidence of their crime, by your death. And so, not daring to murder you, they planned that you should commit suicide."

"You'll answer for that!" shouted the secretary, white with rage.

Lancaster shrugged his shoulders. "It doesn't matter now, my dear," he said. But he had struck Lawson through his triple hide of vanity at last.

"But that isn't all," shouted the man. "Admit that there may be a substratum of truth in these morphine dreams of yours, John Lancaster. Admit that I was ambitious and that I still take the place my half-brother had forfeited in order to be of use to the world and in order to save you from the felons. [illegible] or a madness. Acknowledge that I did impersonate you tonight, as before, that I [illegible] back with Myers in order to get [illegible] this girl, who threatened to [illegible] the institute and put a frustrated [illegible] in the office I hold. Well, what then? That isn't all the story.

"You have played your [illegible] fully. The Lancaster affair [illegible] a fair agreement with [illegible]. But I've done my duty toward [illegible] father, and if he were alive he would thank me for it. And as for this girl, she can go and [illegible] her ravings receive credence. [illegible] I'll face a jury and tell the truth fearlessly.

"But you haven't explained everything to her yet, Joan. You haven't told her where your sweet [illegible] is. You haven't said that it [illegible] while you [illegible] love [illegible] her, your fiancée, under this roof. [illegible] is insane, that she came back [illegible] madness and that you took her [illegible] institute and cared for her [illegible] her own people had discarded [illegible] because you still loved her. And I'll tell you something, John. I brought her back. I was in touch with her from first to last, and I brought her here as an additional lure to keep you at the institute after I had gone to Avonmouth. Just tell Miss Wentworth who Mrs. Dana is."

Joan's eyes met Lancaster's and [illegible] his the supreme moment of his anguish. She braced herself to [illegible]. She told herself that [illegible] no longer cared for his [illegible]. She [illegible] Lawson and Myers [illegible]. But the spring of hope that had been bubbling in her heart seemed to have gone dry.

Lawson seemed to be animated by [illegible] infernal devilltry. He seemed to be throwing off the mask he had assumed. He leaned forward and shook his finger in Lancaster's face.

"And there's another thing, John," he said. "You remember that when we were boys together I resented the difference between your position and mine, because of a few written words upon a legal document you, the younger, were the honored heir of John Lancaster, Sr., living in the big house on the estate, while I was the unacknowledged child, the shame of my poor mother, ostracized even by the meaner whites of the district. Your friends pretended not to know who I was when they rode by."

Lancaster made a gesture of deprecation as Lawson's voice shook with passion. "It's true, Jim," he said, "but can you blame me? Did I not give you the position here?"

"I hated you because of that, John," resumed Lawson. "I hated you, and I vowed some day to turn the tables on you. I wanted to be a surgeon. What a struggle I had working my way through Johns Hopkins while you were spending your father's money there! The struggle soured me, John. And once, do you remember, I was operating on a rabbit under curare, which had paralyzed the motor nerves and left the beast to suffer? It was an experiment such as I had often thought I should like to make on you, and you flung a vile word at me and [illegible] the creature. I told you then that I would get even with you some day. The day arrived. I got my own [illegible] and more, but there is one thing [illegible] I never told you. Your fiancée [illegible] victim of a misunderstanding [illegible] was no other man."

John Lancaster's deep breathing seemed the only sound in the room, and as it gradually rose into full strength he stood now like a panther poised for a leap, every muscle grown taut, and his eyes gleaming. Joan, paralyzed by the sudden unleashing of Lawson's venomous revenge, could not utter a word.

Lancaster spoke. "You said you were in touch with her and brought her here after she became insane," he said. "How did you do it?"

"You have had your full say, John," Lancaster replied Lawson, "and now I am going to have mine. Under the delusion that your intention was to elope with her on the day before that fixed for the marriage in the parish church—a romantic plan to evade the family and curious neighbors—Miss Reid went to Savannah to meet you there. I needn't go into details of the trap that your unacknowledged enemy set for you, but when she learned that she had been tricked it was too late to return. Her life was ruined, John, and it was I, impersonating you, who sent her there."

Chapter XII

Without a sound Lancaster leaped at him.

Joan saw the secretary snatch up the lamp and hold it on high. She heard his screaming, terrified voice above the uproar. He stood like some squat statue illuminating the space

Joan Saw the Secretary Snatch Up the Lamp and Hold It on High above the dark in which Lancaster and Lawson sprawled, clutching at each other like two primeval cave men.

It was grotesque, for it was like a man fighting with himself, and in fact it might have been Lancaster fighting with his evil angel. He was no match for Lawson, but at first his pent-up fury, at last unleashed, matched the two equally. Then Lawson flung his adversary from him and struggled to his knees. As Lancaster grasped him and tried to rise he flung him down again. Lancaster's head struck the corner of the iron bedstead. His hands unclosed, he sighed and lay perfectly still. Joan saw the look of malignant rage upon Lawson's face, saw him raise his heel above the face of the unconscious man. He would have ground out Lancaster's life but that Joan pulled the revolver from her pocket and thrust it into his face for the second time.

Lawson staggered backward, rage and terror depicted upon his features in the light of the swaying lamp. At that moment Myers was crouching near her. He set the lamp down. Joan felt a sharp pain in the upper part of her arm. She saw the secretary putting something into his pocket. He lifted the wavering revolver and backed toward the door, pulling Lawson with him.

"I'm going to finish this!" yelled Lawson.

Myers clutched at him and pulled him into the hall. Joan heard Myers' eager whispers and Lawson's struggles and angry muttering gradually outside.

Then she heard them enter the secretary's room, and, forgetting them instantly, she bent over Lancaster and raised his head upon her knee.

He was breathing heavily. The blow had only stunned him. Joan tried to lift him upon the bed, but he was too heavy for her. As she was attempting to do so, however, the door opened and Mrs. Trasel came in.

HE DIDN'T UNDERSTAND

A bill collector edged into a New York apartment but could get no attention from the head of the house or his wife, both being up to radio sets. The following conversation was going on:

"Watcha got, Liz?"

"Walla Walla. Watcha got?"

"Saskatchewan."

"Furriners, hey?" remarked the bill collector. "But what nationality is this?"

Exceptions

"The Declaration of Independence states that all men are born free and equal."

"Something of the sort."

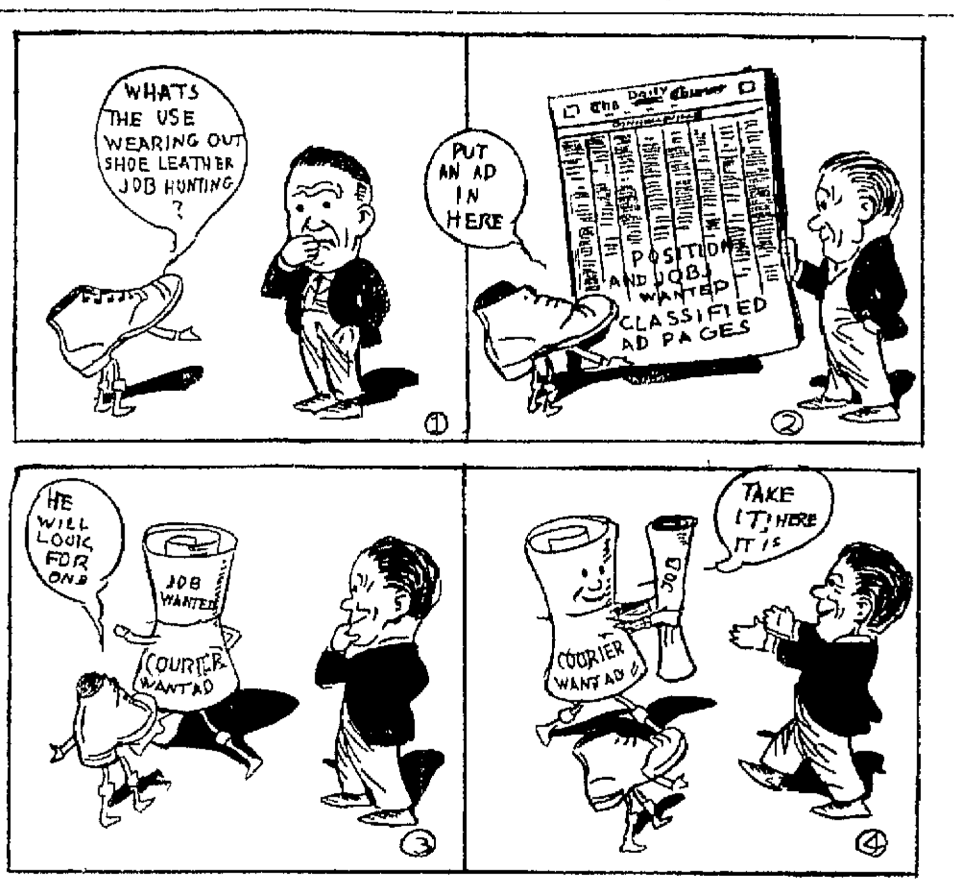

"Then why do you hold yourself so aloof?"

"My dear man, I am descended from one of its signers!"

Quite Customary

"I make it a rule to tell my wife everything that happens," said Browning.

"Oh, my dear fellow, that's nothing," said Smithkins. "I tell my wife lots of things that never happen at all."

Admit Possibility of Metal Transmutation

Nothing better could illustrate the new conceptions of matter now existing in scientific circles than the tone in which the orthodox physicists comment on the report from Germany of the turning of mercury into gold. A few years ago no real scientist would have had the patience to dignify such claims even to the extent of denying them, says the New York Times.

The difference between the elements then was held to be essential and unchangeable. At present there is more than doubt if any essential difference separates any so-called element from any of the others, and to claims of transmutation the answer is "Not impossible!"

The old assumptions as to the indestructibility of matter and the conservation of energy—they too have fallen upon evil days, and the respect that used to be theirs has waned to next to nothing. Yet science need not confess fallibility since it never asserted infallibility. The old hypotheses fitted all of the known facts of their day and they met the pragmatic test—they worked.

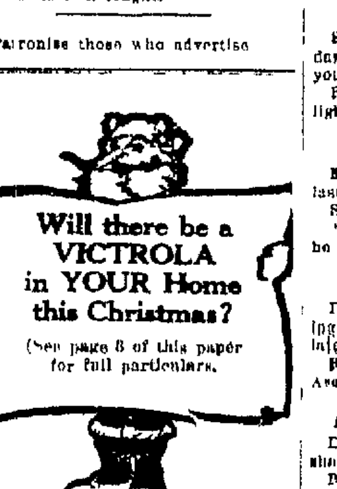

It was said of Herbert Spencer that his idea of a tragedy was the overthrowing of a beautiful hypothesis by an ugly fact. In these days no horror at all and not even disquietude is caused by such happenings.

Telephone to Teach Better Enunciation

Men who are trying to improve telephone service believe that the telephone will teach its users to speak clearly—not with (no conversation but in the course of time. And, certainly business would be expedited with perfect enunciation over the telephone. Even a simple name like Dixon, when passed over the wires may become almost anything—and then it is spelled for verification, thus: "D for Dan, I for Ike, X for X-ray"—words as difficult as the one to be understood.

Progress in plain talking does seem to lag in the opinion of The Nation's Business. Any optimism in that direction is blighted by the hash in our daily speech. Ideas seem to have transmission as much by telepathy as by telephony. "Wassatyugottado t'nighthuh?" But a jumble of letters will make sound and so may give a message to sophisticated ears. The eye is more expert than the ear at registering words. Whoever was fooled by the blanks in the penny dreadfuls of the long ago? The d——s were promptly accepted at their full brimstone content, but a curse by telephone might easily be garbled into a compliment. It's a wise ear that knows its own tongue.

Snake Does Not "Sting"

The stinging snake is a myth. Although thousands of people apparently believe there is such a thing as a stinging snake, and many of them insist that they have seen such snakes, no competent scientist or observer has ever had the privilege of seeing one. Rewards for stinging snakes are occasionally offered, but no such snakes are ever produced. The nearest approach to the supposed stinging snake is the Farancia abacura, a small harmless snake with a needle-like spine on its tail. In different parts of the South this snake, along with kindred species, is known variously as the hoop snake, the rainbow snake, the mud snake and the stinging snake. But the notion that these snakes sting with their tails is all poppycock.—Exchange.

OPPORTUNITY IN AMERICA

WILLLIAM E KNOX

Radical demagogues sometimes accuse the capitalistic system with favoring the rich and powerful as against the poor and lowly. Fifty-three years ago an Irish lad of nine was brought to the United States by his parents. He went to the public schools and then began work as an office boy. A few days ago on October 3 he was elected president of the American Bankers Association, the world's largest financial organization. He is president of one of the largest savings banks in the United States, the Bowery Savings Bank of New York City. This election of William E. Knox, who has risen from Irish immigrant to chief of American bankers, is the most striking reminder of the year of the democracy of opportunity in capitalistic America.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

On How Not to Make Out Checks

The most annoying thing has happened, Aunt Emmy," exclaimed Helen. "I sent a check for $5 to the hospital to help them in their drive, and some one cashed it. But it's a shame for I simply can't afford to send another."

"I don't see how they could hap pen," said Aunt Emmy, "if you made out the check properly."

"Why, of course I did," Helen said. "I made it out just as I always do: to 'bearer.'"

Aunt Emmy laughed. "No wonder they lost it!" she said. "Any one would cash a check made out like that. Very careless of you to do it, no matter to whom the check is given. It would only take a few seconds to write the name of the payee properly. A check made out to 'Bearer' may be cashed by any one who gets it. It is regrettable but true that not every one is honest. You know that lots of people would take a five dollar bill if they happened to find it. A check made payable to bearer or to 'cash' is just as tempting to them as a five dollar bill would be."

"But, Aunty, it was so frightfully mean to steal from the hospital!"

"You invited this particular theft by neglecting to make your check out properly," Aunt Emmy admonished Helen. "You may be glad your loss is no greater. Even when you go to the bank for money yourself you should not make your check payable to cash. Suppose you should lose it on the way? The same thing that happened to the hospital check might happen to it. Better take an extra minute and make the check out to yourself, sign your name to it as usual and indorse it just as though it were one you received from someone else."

"That seems like a lot of times to sign your own name on one little check, doesn't it, Aunty?" objected Helen.

"It's ever so much better to be on the safe side than to lose your money through carelessness," retorted Aunt Emmy.—Anne B. Aymes.

Government Does Not Own Reserve Banks

In the discussion of the Federal Reserve banks and their operations undue emphasis has frequently been placed on their relation to the government and they are frequently called government banks. As a matter of fact they are not "government banks" in a true sense but are corporations organized under an act of Congress, and owned entirely by their member banks. The government does not hold a single share of their stock. The control of the banks' operations is also largely in the hands of the member banks, who elect two-thirds of the Federal Reserve bank directors, the remaining one-third being appointed by the government to represent the interest of the government and the public.

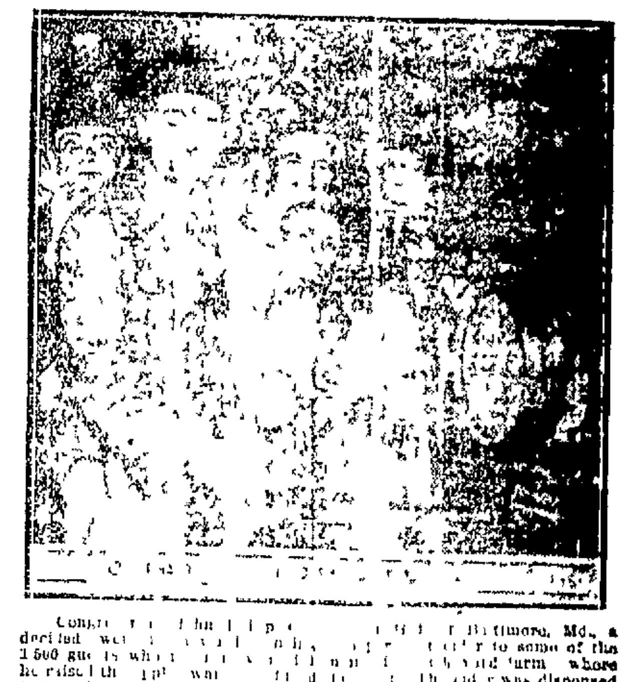

The Federal Reserve banks, it is true, are agents of the government in addition to their other activities, and in this capacity they must follow the instructions of the government in handling transactions which they perform simply as agents. We believe that it is important that the fact that a clear understanding of this point should be generally had, as many of the criticisms made against the Federal Reserve banks have been based on a misapprehension as to their relation to the government.—American Bankers Association Journal.

Neighbors

Many a housewife locks the front door out of habit—then hangs the key in plain sight. She knows her neighbors so well that her one-time fear is now trust.

Just through familiarity, your one-time fear of goods you have never tested has turned to trust too. Advertising has done that for you. It convinces you that since others believe, you also are safe in believing.

All products widely advertised are worthy of your faith. You buy from neighborly folk when you buy from their dealers.

Play Golf in Switzerland

Golf is becoming popular in Switzerland. Playing in the Alps should develop long hitters, for the course will be laid out so that it will be necessary to drive the ball to places which up to the intrusion of the golfers have been inhabited only by the mountain goats. The first nine holes on the Swiss courses will be difficult because they will be built up the mountain sides. The second nine holes will be a picnic coming back.

K. I. Berry, captain in the United States army and former football star at the University of Texas, will return to school this fall and try for a tackle position on the eleven.

MONESSEN LOSES TO SCOTTDALE AT MILL TOWN FIELD

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTDALE, Sept. 29.—Scottdale High School's football team made an excellent beginning Saturday when it defeated Monessen High by a score of 13 to 10. Monessen did not have a man on the field that weighed less than 170 pounds.

The game started with Monessen kicking off to Scottdale. Manly fumbled; Diskin recovered and ran 50 yards for a touchdown. At the end of the first quarter the score was 6-0, Scottdale. Koosman blocked a kick for a touchdown and Scottdale being offside gave Monessen the extra point, making the count 7-6. Diskin recovered a fumble and ran to the 25-yard line. No score was made, however.

Franks made a drop kick from the 3-yard line and the score was 10-6 in favor of Monessen. Spiegelberg carried the ball [illegible] yards and at the beginning of the fourth quarter Monessen was penalized 15 yards. Ulery made a 20-yard gain. Stiles gained 20 yards. Reynolds made a touchdown and Ulery kicked the goal, making the score 13-10 in favor of Scottdale.

Monessen had with them 500 rooters and on both sides the cheer leaders made the game very interesting.

LAFOLLETTE DOES NOT LIKE RATING AS SOCIALIST IN CALIF.

[illegible] Senator La Follette's campaign under an independent Progressive banner. In order to file the La Follette electors in the minds of the voters, the Socialist label will be used. This carried disadvantages recognized by the practical politicians in Indiana who are protesting loudest on behalf of Senator La Follette.

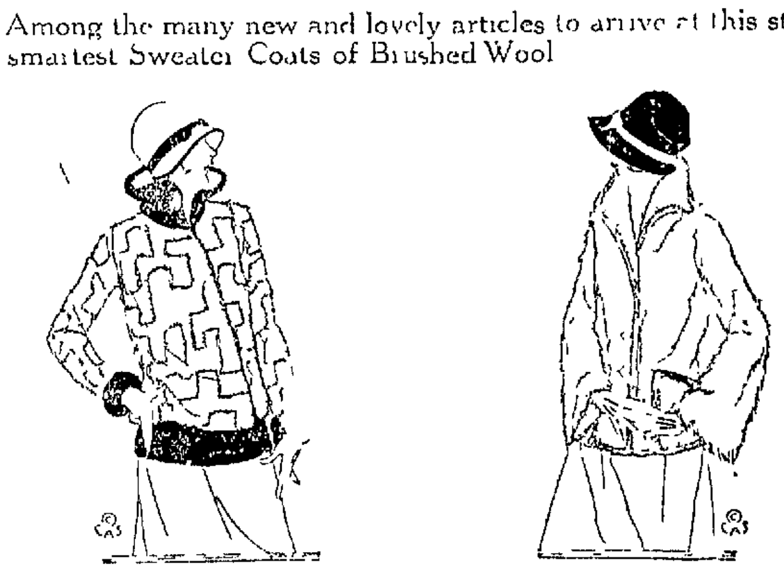

Whatever Senator La Follette may be elsewhere, in other states, here in California he is to be a Socialist. The effect [illegible] the liberal voter may be to turn wavering votes back to Davis and Coolidge. So long as the Wisconsin leader appeared as a Progressive or Independent Republican, many voters have felt they were not really doing much more than a large number of voters did in 1912. But Socialism is looked upon quite generally in America as involving radical departures in the American economic system and it will be interesting to see whether in California Senator La Follette will feel compelled to renounce some of the tenets of the very party which is running him under his emblem on the ballot.

Speaking of what happened in 1912, [illegible] observers that California [illegible] the Progressive Republicans [illegible] Johnson [illegible] Roosevelt [illegible] primary campaign to announce the [illegible]. The Progressive [illegible] 12 years ago.

So far as fundamental rights are concerned the [illegible] the voters of California can mark their ballots for La Follette by writing names of electors or [illegible] the Socialist electors. What is happened simply means a campaign inconvenience.
